I agree with this last post. I've followed Ingraham's career since she was on the Dartmouth Review, with Dinesh D'Souza. She was sued by one professor, an African American, whom she called a "brillo-head" in print. She printed a transcript of a meeting of Dartmouth's gay students group, after sending a reporter there incognito with a wire.

As editor of Prospect, the magazine of Concerned Alumni of Princeton, she went after Princeton's female and minority students with a vengeance, and in the same vein. She was despised by the Princeton community as a carpetbagger.

I've written about her and CAP for some time, particularly a year ago when Judge Alito was up for the Supreme Court. Alito had been a member of CAP when she and Dinesh were editors, around 1984-86. She told reporters last year that CAP had never opposed women and minorities at Princeton, when that was its founding purpose, which it declared in print. But CAP was not anti woman, she said, because they had hired her! (Dinesh said it wasn't anti-minority, because it had hired him!)

In fact, CAP's principals could not find a Princeton alum to edit Prospect after its founding editor left, and had to bring in carpetbagger/mercenaries for 10 years until its well-deserved death in the summer of 1986. Ingraham was CAP's last employee. She and Dinesh destroyed it.

These folks pioneered the tactics used by the Gingrich Republicans of slander and attack, while making up facts as they went along.

"Airhead rightwing bimboLauraIngraham"???

You obviously don't know too much! She is probably much smarter than you and any of those idiots on Air America!

Ingraham graduated from Glastonbury High School in Glastonbury, Connecticut in 1982. She holds a bachelor's degree from Dartmouth College and a law degree (J.D.) from the University of Virginia School of Law. During her Dartmouth years, she wrote for the conservative newspaper The Dartmouth Review.

"In the late 1980s, Ingraham worked as a speechwriter in the Ronald Reagan administration. She also briefly served as editor of The Prospect, the magazine issued by Concerned Alumni of Princeton. In the early 1990s, she served as a law clerk to U.S. Supreme Court Justice Clarence Thomas and to Ralph K. Winter on the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit. She then worked as a white-collar criminal defense attorney for Skadden, Arps, Slate, Meagher & Flom."

I know Ingraham.

When I retired from the Army in the mid-1990's, I was hired by the DC law firm where she worked — I was hired for a six-month special project dealing with a contract that one of the firm's clients had with the Pentagon. Ingraham's office was around the corner from me.

She was universally disliked because of her sloppy personal habits (her office looked like Godzilla's shithouse) and her poor work habits — she never met a deadline, she claimed other associates' work as hers, abused the paralegals, and so pissed off the legal secretaries she had to rely on the word processing pool to get her work done. She brought no work to the firm; in fact, one big-time client threatened to take his business elsewhere if she got anywhere near his case.

She was released after a year.

She is, however, a success as a "rightwing pundit" — figures — as a pundit, she doesn't have to support anything she says, doesn't have to do any research, does not have to go toe-to-toe with someone on the other side — she just sits there and spews shit.
