The same could be said about an excel spreadsheet. It often is. However, if using it strictly for logical data lookups, it's a non-issue. There are many other ways to tackle it. I just thought I'd ask.

Thx.

A97 crosstab queries are limited to 255-fields.
Does any later version(s) of Access support a greater number?

No.

If you could, that would be the report from hell to design and read. Or viewing in a form. Scrolling horizontally would be a massive headache.
