

Re: Translating foreign text into html code – help

Source:

<http://newsgroups.derkeiler.com/Archive/Comp/comp.infosystems.www.authoring.html/2005-10/msg00529.html>

- From: Andreas Prilop <nhtcapri@xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx>
 - Date: Wed, 26 Oct 2005 16:21:46 +0200
-

On Wed, 26 Oct 2005, Stan Brown wrote:

> I have some curly quotes in my test, and it saved them as characters > 147 and 148 -- the actual characters, not “ and ”.

This means "charset=windows-1252". What happens if you throw in some Greek and Cyrillic letters?

--

Netscape 3.04 does everything I need, and it's utterly reliable.
Why should I switch? Peter T. Daniels in <news:sci.lang>

• References:

- ◆ Translating foreign text into html code – help
 ◇ From: gregf
- ◆ Re: Translating foreign text into html code – help
 ◇ From: Garnt de Vries
- ◆ Re: Translating foreign text into html code – help
 ◇ From: Jukka K. Korpela
- ◆ Re: Translating foreign text into html code – help
 ◇ From: Alan J. Flavell
- ◆ Re: Translating foreign text into html code – help
 ◇ From: Stan Brown

- Prev by Date: Re: Translating foreign text into html code – help
- Next by Date: Re: breaking hyphen?
- Previous by thread: Re: Translating foreign text into html code – help
- Next by thread: Re: Translating foreign text into html code – help
- Index(es):
 - ◆ Date
 - ◆ Thread