Find something else to demonize.

No.

Unlike you, I'm not in denial.

Ergo, no need for "something else".

An inanimate object did not walk through a building killing people of its own volition.

You could use the same argument to support private citizens owning tanks, rocket launchers and helicopter gunships.

And what's wrong with that? Why should someone be denied anything based solely on some ninnies' fears or fuckwit's incompetence? What sort of totalitarian cult of mediocrity are you espousing here?

That sort of rot may fly in England, but I'm glad to say it never will here.

And yes, I do aspire to an F-5 fighter jet. Looks like bags of fun to me, and that's the only reason necessary. A Cobra gunship as well, I hear the make great cropdusters, too.
