Any man visiting Bangkok is a pedophile, according to Fox News, and Washington Square echoes to the screams of diseased five-year-old starving slave children being raped and beaten by thousands of salivating Western pedophiles given free passes by the money-grabbing Thai Government.

Fox News is notorious for telling lies but yesterday's report from Rudi Bakhtiar must surely be the ultimate in knuckle-dragging prejudice masquerading as a news story.

Anchorman: If the suspect John Karr did rape and kill JonBenet Ramsey, as he says he did, it's not surprising where he fled to. He was busted in Bangkok, a place some people call a pedophile paradise because of its lucrative child sex industry.

Bakhtiar: This is a billion dollar industry in Bangkok... Kids as young as 5 or 4 being trafficked and taken to brothels, taken to "painter" bars, taken to places where they basically are used and abused for sex objects.

Anchorman: What is a "painter" bar?

Bakhtiar: It's some bars that are, you know, in some place called Washington Square in downtown Bangkok where people go to get drinks. It's a low key bar but where sex is offered.

Re: Fox News: Every man visiting Bangkok is a pedo

Anchorman: With kids?

Bakhtiar: With kids varying in ages and the kids are treated very poorly, John. Basically, they have diseases, they don't get medical attention, they're not fed properly, they're beaten if they don't make enough money.

Citing a Vietnam War era statute permitting prostitution in areas frequented by American troops, Bakhtiar then accuses the Thai Government of condoning – and even promoting – the sexual abuse of children. Disconcertingly, she laughs and grins throughout.

Anchorman: This guy, there's a lot of suspicion falling on him because he has a history. He was arrested for having child porn on his computer, he fled from the charges, he's claiming to be in love with JonBenet and, therefore, confirming all this is the fact that he was in Bangkok, Thailand.

In other words, if you've ever visited Bangkok, Fox News says that you're a confirmed pedophile.

Anchorman: Is the only reason somebody would go to Bangkok, Thailand is the sex industry?

Bakhtiar: Well, I'd hate to speculate on that and ruin Thailand's tourist industry altogether [smiles broadly] in one shot, John, but it's listed as the third place for child abuse and child sexual exploitation. Basically, children there see anything between two and ten clients per week... it's one of the biggest industries for them.

Bakhtiar then repeats her unfounded allegations about the Thai Government's involvement in child abuse. She goes on to quote statistics relating to the size of Thailand's regular sex industry but misrepresents them as being evidence of the widespread sexual abuse of children.

The whole story is pure fabrication from start to finish. I've been to every sleazy bar in Bangkok and have never once been offered a child prostitute.

When planeloads of Fox-inspired pedophile scum descend on Bangkok's shabby Washington Square, they'll be in for a big disappointment.
